3. If you are transferring ownership of a goat that is already NDGA registered, fill in the goat's name in the top section, then fill out gray section completely. Send in this form to NDGA along with the original NDGA certificate. Transfers of goats that are already registered cannot be done without the original Registration Certificate.
4. If the goat you are registering is already registered with AGS, or ADGA, fill in the name of the goat and send the form with a photo copy of the AGS, or ADGA Registration Certificate.
5. When sending photo copies of AGS, or ADGA paper, if the "date of sale" or transfer information is on the back of the certificate, also include a photo copy of the back. A Copy of the AGS Bill of Sale or a signed and dated NDGA Transfer MUST be included.

OTHER INFORMATION

1. Who is the breeder? The breeder is the person who owns the dame at the time of conception. When registering a goat, you always us the herd name of the breeder.
2. When do I need a Breeding (Service) Memo? If the sire of the goat you are registering is not owned by the breeder, you must have the owner of the sire fill out and sign a Breeding Memo. You also need a Breeding Memo for the sire when you purchase a doe that is already bred.
3. How to register the kids when you purchase a doe that is already bred. When you purchase a bred doe, the owner should provide you with a signed Transfer Form (Bill of Sale) for the doe and a Breeding Memo for the sire. You can transfer the doe at any time. The Breeding Memo should be kept and turned in with the Registration Application for the kids when they are born. When the kids are born, they will be registered with the herd name of the breeder. The purchaser of the bred doe will be shown as the owner and the term "PRENATAL" will be used as the date of ownership. Prenatal means you owned the kids before birth but after conception.
